

Dix WACs Man Ambulance

Ambulance Drivers, Pfc. Matilda Rogers and Pvt. Ruth H. Watson, WAC Detachment No. 2, stop for a check on their busy schedule of rounds at Fort Dix, N. J. Pfc. Rogers, who hails from Carlisle, Ky., was a defense worker in one of the country's largest aircraft plants until she joined the WACs to help a sweetheart in the Quartermaster Corps "somewhere" overseas "come back soon." Pvt. Watson calls Newport News, Va., her home but has spent much of her life in N. Y. C., which she "adopted" as her own. Until she joined the WAC, Pvt. Watson had never driven before she took the "GI" driving test, but like Pfc. Rogers says that she finds the work not only constructive and worthwhile, but interesting as well.

Pfc. Matilda Rogers and Pvt. Ruth H. Watson

University of Kentucky Libraries

Notable Kentucky African Americans Database (NKAA)

Picture and text published in Jackson Advocate, 04/01/1944, p.5